Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Are you one of those who complains about wartime inconveniences and calls them sacrifices?
If you are I dare you to keep on reading . . . and if you do, you will have one of two, maybe both, reactions . . . you will either be very ashamed . . . or you will face your small part in this war with more willingness.

Are you one of those who is bearing down without complaint?
If you are, you will hold your head high . . . and be very proud of the boys who know what sacrifice really means.

Without comment . . . and with best wishes . . . I now give you a story sent me by one of my friends in the service . . . here it is:

Three minutes of your time,
please—just three minutes.

I want to tell you the story of a 19-year-old sailor, wounded at sea, who wants to do a very human thing—lay his head on his Momie's breast and have a good cry.

It involves a little thing we know as freedom of speech. Coxswain Robert F. Evans eminently qualifies to exercise that right of democracy. He bled for it.

Bobby Evans once belonged to the 131st Field Artillery, the famed lost battalion of Java. Ten months he spent in training. But he was left behind when the outfit went overseas. He was honorably discharged when they learned he was barely 17.

Two days after Pearl Harbor, Bobby joined the Navy. The other day, after twenty months of combat, he landed on the West Coast. Bobby is a wounded veteran at 19 and he has been doing some thinking. He wrote a letter to his mother and dad from San Francisco.

It is a study in war, this letter.
Remember, he is 19, war weary and unbending everything to his mother and dad.

"I can't write a cheerful letter. I am so disappointed in this country I could cry. For twenty months out there in the islands I've prayed and fought and bled, waiting for this day to come.
Now that it's here, I'll be glad to get back out there among human beings again.

"I don't know why we are going through all that out there for what I've found back here. Strikes, gripes and complaints is all you can find. Good God, what have they to complain about back here?

"Have they ever tried to tell their best friend that everything is all right when his guts were falling out on a ship deck from a bomb fragment hit, or have they huddled in a foxhole all night in the rain wondering if that next one is yours?

"Don't get me wrong. I'm no hero. I've done only the things I've had to. I'm not complaining about them. There are a lot of men out there who have done, and are doing, more than I ever have—such as the men on Tarawa. I didn't get in on that show. We were busy enough at Bougainville right then.

"Maybe I'm unpatriotic, call it what you like, but sometimes I get to the point where I don't care whether we win or lose this damn terrible thing. I'll almost be ashamed to live among some of these people when it is over. Some of them call us suckers for going out there. For my part, those 'suckers' are the best people in this fouled-up world. . . .

Bitter generalities? Bobby writes on:

"The other night in Frisco, Matt and I were in a bar bailing in a couple to quiet our nerves when some war workers in the next booth starting shooting off their mouths about how they hoped to hell this war would last a lot longer. 'I'm making more money and doing less work than I ever have in my life,' one of them said.
'I hope that wherever they are,
the men and kids that have been killed on my ship and that 'rock' we lived on, saw us do our best for them. When we got through with them, the shore patrol would have thrown us in the brig if they had been around.

"Mom, after that I wanted to lay my head on your breast and cry just like I used to when one of my pups got run over. I wanted you to stroke my face and tell me how everything would turn out for the best. I've wanted to do that hundreds of times out there—when

Beachhead Attack Beaten Back

American Bombers Return To Assault German War Industry; Stuttgart Smashed by British; Russians Drive Into Estonia While Fighting Rages in Pskov

By RICHARD McMURRAY
(By the Associated Press)

Americans in the Rome bridgehead drove three German divisions back 1,000 yards and still were advancing today after beating down a violent attempt to split the pocket between Cisterna and Carroceto in the third Nazi offensive to drive the Fifth army into the sea.

The German communique said "fluctuating fighting developed yesterday south and southwest of Cisterna. The enemy succeeded at several points in breaking into our advanced positions gained on previous days."

Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the U. S. Air Force swarmed into southwest Germany today after 600 British bombers battered Stuttgart by night with 1680 to 1900 tons of bombs in what the Germans called a "terror attack."

British bombers hit Stuttgart in "very strong force" and Munich.
The Russians threw semi-circumstances around the northern cities of Narva, Pskov and Vitebsk for imminent kills. Finnish newspapers attacked Russian peace terms.

Bulgaria and Hungary reacted to the impending negotiations, looking for ways out of the war. Ankara heard British and American supplies to Turkey had halted.

Argentina was in uneasy calm after an abortive revolt.

Nazi Drive Stopped
The Germans opened their third drive against the Rome beachhead before dawn Tuesday after the heaviest artillery barrage they have yet laid. The Allies replied in kind, and their cannon tore gaps in enemy ranks. Momentum of the German attack carried about 1,500 yards into Allied positions southwest of Cisterna apparently, but the Americans gained back two-thirds of this ground.

More than 500 Germans were captured and heavy casualties inflicted. The German attack yesterday had lost some of its early vigor and when night descended,
the situation was well in hand.
Associated Press war correspondent, Edward Kennedy radioed from the beachhead.

Col. Gen. Eberhard von Mackensen had hurled between 30,000 and 45,000 men with Mark IV and Tiger tanks at a narrow sector and once again his aristocratic Prussian nose had been bloodied. The battle was fought in rain and hail and was the heaviest in the beach campaign. The weather limited Allied planes to 170 flights and grounded the Germans.

Only patrol action was reported on the Fifth army front around Cassino and on the Eighth Army sector near the Adriatic. Across the Adriatic, Tito's Yugoslav partisans drove German troops from Glin, and captured an airdrome at Sinj, a communique said.

German Factory Hit
Only four British bombers were lost in the battle against Stuttgart, aircraft center in southwest Germany last night.

"A very strong force of aircraft of the bomber command attacked Stuttgart last night," the British Air Ministry said, "large fires were left burning. Mosquitoes attacked Munich and objectives in France and the low countries."

U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators in strong force smashed at southwest Germany today hard on the heels of a 600-bomber assault by the RAF last night upon the important war center of Stuttgart.

The American target was not announced immediately, but the direction of the attack suggested a U. S.-RAF double night-and-day punch at the Stuttgart section like the ones highlighting last week's powerful aerial drive.

The Russians announced at midnight.

'Missing' Soldier Returns
To Find Wife Married

INDIANAPOLIS, March 2.—(AP)—
A mistake in reports on two army sergeants of the same name resulted in a marital tangle here, but it apparently has been unraveled.

Judge Judson L. Stark said
the story ran about like this:
Sgt. Walter W. Barr, with 13 years service, entered foreign duty in August, 1940.

In January, 1942, the army notified Mrs. Barr her pay allotment was being discontinued as her husband had obtained a divorce, had remarried and was missing in action.

Mrs. Barr took in as boarders to augment her income, Robert E. Utley and his ten-year-old daughter. In June, 1943, Utley and Mrs. Barr were married.

Body Is Found Buried In Church

Capital Police Confronted by Bizarre Mystery

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—
A basement pit in the library of the magnificent Washington Cathedral yielded the bludgeoned and scantily clothed body of a young woman librarian today, confronting police with a bizarre mystery.

The body of Miss Catherine Cooper Reardon, 37, found only in a slip, was clothed by co-workers in a steam-pipe pit. She had been missing since late yesterday when she told her mother she was "going out for a while."

Within three hours after the body was found, police arrested two men for questioning.

Jap Aircraft Carrier Is Torpedoed by Sub

American Landing Force on Admiralty Island in Bismarck Sea Beats Back First Nip Major Counter Attack and Yanks Expect To Put Seized Airfield To Full Use in Tightening Squeeze on Enemy's Pacific Bases

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
(By the Associated Press)

Five submarine chasers shepherding a 7,000-ton Japanese aircraft carrier through Malacca Strait couldn't prevent a British submarine from sending torpedoes crashing into the flattop's hull and probably sinking her, the British Admiralty announced today.

A Royal Navy submarine first sighted the carrier, escorted by five submarine chasers, in the northern approaches to Malacca Strait, and fired a salvo of torpedoes. No hits were observed, and the sub chasers drove the submarine off temporarily.

The British ship returned to the attack, scoring a hit and stopping the flattop.

"A further torpedo which struck the enemy amidships caused a violent explosion. The ship heeled over and is believed to have sunk," the communique said.

It is through Malacca Strait, which separates Malaya from the island of Sumatra, that most supplies to Japan's army in Burma must pass.

The Admiralty said other submarines scored torpedo hits on a Japanese cruiser in the same area, but not in the same action, and sank a medium-sized supply ship. A smaller supply ship was shelled into submission.

Island Attack Repulsed
In the Southwest Pacific, Allied headquarters confidently predicted quickly-captured Momote airdrome on the invaded Admiralty Islands "will shortly be in full use by our air force," and said the enemy's first major counter-attack against the American beachhead had been repulsed.

(The Tokyo radio claimed today in a broadcast to China that an "enemy attempt to land on the Admiralty Islands was repulsed by the Japanese defenders," and

Big, Brawling Yanks
Sing As Attack Japs

By OLEN CLEMENTS
THE ADMIRALTY ISLANDS,
Feb. 29.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Big, brawling cavalrymen, trained on the rough and tumble Texas border, stormed ashore on Los Negros Island in the Admiralty group at 8:15 A.M. today and one hour and a half later had captured Momote airfield.

Their brilliant move was accomplished with negligible loss.
Known Japanese casualties in the first few hours were 73 dead.

The dismounted cavalrymen, components of the first cavalry division, went ashore in small boats that weathered intense fire from Japanese shore guns. The first wave made it without a scratch, but the second and third waves were caught in heavy fire.
One of them had to turn back momentarily but finally reached the island after a navy gunner had been killed.

The smooth landing caught the Japanese by surprise. Our convoy, all warships, showed up off the islands at dawn. The sky was overcast.

The warships spread out along the beach and began pouring heavy shells into Japanese positions.

Japanese shore guns replied.
Shells churned the water. One salvo came dangerously close to our destroyer, flagship of the task force.

Forty minutes after the naval shelling began it ended with the was best in the long run because it served as a complete cover for

Here's Jury For Trial

'THEY'VE GOT ME' HE IS ALLEGED TO HAVE SAID

First Startling Testimony
Comes in Argument Over Law
In Triple Murder Trial

While left alone in a small room at the detective headquarters in Toledo, James W. Collett, charged with the triple murder of the Elmer McCoy family in the trial now in progress here, beat on the arm of the chair in which he was seated and cried, "They've got me—Jim, you've gone too far." Such was the testimony given from the witness stand by Sheriff W. H. Icenhower Thursday morning in the absence of the jury.

Later, in describing the search of the Collett farm for the missing guns, the sheriff quoted Collett as telling his son:

"Yes, Thomas, I killed Elmer but I don't know about the women."

"I always wanted a good home for you and Louise." (Louise is Thomas' wife.)

The sheriff was being questioned as the first witness in a hearing before Judge Rankin, with the jury excluded, in which the judge is hearing evidence to determine whether the alleged Collett confession is admissible as evidence.

Icenhower, during the questioning, testified that shortly after Collett made this statement and while he believed he was alone, he had voluntarily agreed to sign a confession that he had killed Elmer McCoy in the barn of the McCoy home on Thanksgiving eve.

The defense, on Thursday, was making a vigorous drive in questioning the sheriff to set up alleged facts that the Collett confession came under duress. Three other witnesses have been called by the defense, through whom it hopes to prove that Collett's alleged confession and other statements he made were the result of compulsion and pressure due to the manner in which Collett was treated and because he was not permitted to see any attorney, friend or relative during the time he was in custody until after he had signed the confession. The other witnesses to be called by the defense are Capt. Arthur Eggert and Lt. George Eckerman of the Toledo detective force and Justice of the Peace George Worrell, before whom Collett entered his first plea of not guilty.

The procedure in connection with this hearing before Judge Rankin is declared to be a precedent-setting action because it is the first time, court officials and attorneys here state, that an effort has been made to determine whether a confession may be admitted as evidence or referred to in statements before a jury until after the court has passed upon its validity as evidence.

Sheriff's Testimony
As soon as Sheriff Icenhower was called to the witness stand, by the defense it became evident that Attorney Linton, Collett's chief counsel, expected to spare no one's feelings in seeking to prove that the alleged Collett confession was practically forced from him.

In the course of his testimony the sheriff stated that Collett had told him after the confession was signed, that he had made it and that when the sheriff replied,
"Jim, you've done the right thing," Collett said that he had had a lapse of memory and did not remember about killing Mrs.
McCoy or the daughter, Mildred.
He did repeat, however, some of the details to him, the sheriff said, whereby he told how he had driven into the McCoy farm yard, parked his car, saw Elmer driving his truck up to the barn, met him in the barn, had an argument over money which Collett claimed was due Mrs. Collett from McCoy, and when McCoy got mad and swung at him with a fork handle, he shot him in the back, or the back of the head, he did not remember just where.

The sheriff also stated that Collett had said that Elmer McCoy had reached for a gun in his (McCoy's) hip pocket, before he (Collett) shot him. When asked

CORN SHORTAGE BECOMES ACUTE

Farmers Holding Grain To Feed Livestock, Claim

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)— Government food officials are searching for a painless method of pulling upwards of 75,000,000 bushels of corn off farms during the next several months to avert a possible shutdown of processing plants using the grain for food and industrial products.

With corn supplies running short of demands of livestock feeders and other users, only dribbles of the grain are moving to market. Most farmers prefer to use the corn for livestock feeding than to sell it. They can make more money by converting it into livestock products than by selling at present ceiling prices.

Officials said unless some means can be found to increase the flow to market, processing plants may be forced to slow down or close altogether.

Aside from voluntary marketings by farmers, there appear to be only two ways of drawing corn off farms. One is by a process of requisitioning. The other is by changing price policies which would make it more profitable to sell corn itself. Officials said no move to requisition supplies was being considered.

By WILLIAM FERRIS
CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP)—Officials of the Chicago Board of Trade would like to re-open the corn pit, which once was second only to wheat in trading activity, but their efforts are blocked by one inescapable fact: there isn't enough of the yellow grain here to permit futures transactions.

Corn was removed from the boards June 26, 1943. Prior to that all contracts had held at ceilings for many weeks. Trading was indefinitely suspended when the federal government commandeered stocks in terminal and sub-terminal markets. The corn pit itself is now used for rye trading.

QUADRUPLTS BORN
TO ENGLISH MOTHER;
FATHER IS SOLDIER

HEANOR, Derbyshire, England,
March 2.—(AP)—The soldier-father of the Heanor quadruplets, who was present at the time of birth and helped name the babies, has rejoined his unit, unable to take a farewell look at Britain's most-discussed quartet.

The father's name was not officially disclosed, since the births have not yet been registered at City Hall. British law allows three months for registration. The mother is 23-year-old Nora Carpenter.

Nora's mother said the quadru-plet's father had not been permitted to see the youngsters again before leaving because MacDonald, youngest and frailest of the four,
has a cold and visitors had been prohibited.

HARDEST FIGHTING IS AHEAD,

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—
Navy Secretary Knox warned

'OUR TOWN' GETS $133 FOR LIONS CANTEN FUND

Cast and Director Are Praised By Lions for Work in Benefit Show

Netting $133.25 in all for the Lions Club canteen, the cast of the WHS production of "Our Town" and Miss Keck, director, today have the satisfaction of knowing their work pulled enough money out of Washington's pockets to keep coffee and cookies pouring into the bus station here to be consumed by servicemen for three weeks.

And it was work too—long hours of learning lines, rehearsing and perfecting lighting, make-up, costuming. But the finished product turned out to be a play that will be remembered by those who saw it, for a long time—and even longer by the scholars who made it possible.

R. B. Tharp, Lions Club representative who made an appeal for contributions to the canteen fund at the Wednesday and Sunday performance, presented a corsage of red roses and tube lilies to Miss Keck Wednesday night in appreciation of her work in producing the play.

The crowd Wednesday night, although not as large as the Sunday afternoon audience, contributed $58.10 to the fund. Sunday, the collection was $75.15.

Cast of "Our Town" is: Stage Manager, Frank Jean; Dr. Gibbs, Bill Chapman; Joe Crowell, Joe Cullen; Howie Newsome, Charles Baker; Mrs. Gibbs, Doris Brandenburg; Mrs. Webb, Bobby Lou Speaks; George Gibbs, Chester Brown; Rebecca Gibbs, June Cook; Wally Webb, George Hall; Emily Webb, Janice Murray; Mr. Webb, Dick Babb; Simon Stimson, Karl L. Kay; Mrs. Soames, Jane Campbell; Si Crowell, Johnny Boylan and Sam Craig, Dick Hagerty.

At the Lions Club meeting Tuesday night, W. L. O'Brien praised the high school for its cooperation with the club—in presenting "Our Town" for the benefit of the canteen and for making the auditorium available for presentation of the "Lions Canteen Revue," slated for April 17.

another and better entrenched faction."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's counsel has been informed of the contents of the statement, the News added.

"The News, because of the personal importance of the individuals concerned and out of respect for the high places they occupy today, will refrain from mentioning their names at this time," the story declared.

Buchalter and two of his "dollar-a-death syndicate" henchmen, Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss and Louis Capone were convicted of slaying Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn storekeeper, eight years ago.

As the hour set for his execution drew ominously near, Buchalter, 47, clung to the hope his life would be spared.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus—which might have postponed the execution—was denied in New York federal court yesterday.

The only possibilities still open are an appeal from yesterday's decision, a further effort to secure a new trial, and the hope Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will grant an 11th hour reprieve.

MISSING SOLDIER RETURNS TO FIND WIFE MARRIED BECAUSE OF MISTAKE

A few days later, the Red Cross informed the new Mrs. Utley that Sgt. Barr was not missing and had not obtained a divorce. A second army sergeant of the same name was the missing man.

Then, a day or two later Sgt. Barr arrived here on furlough, followed by two large packages of letters written to Mrs. Barr by her husband. Postal officials said the delay was caused by a mixup.

After a conference, Utley moved from the Barr home but his daughter remained and a suit to annul the Barr-Utley marriage was filed in Judge Stark's court.

On Feb. 17, Sgt. Barr left again for foreign service, after approving the return of Utley to his home as a boarder.

Judge Stark granted the annulment and approved the arrangement whereby Utley and his daughter will live in the Barr home as boarders.

Free legal aid to servicemen and their dependents is provided by the American Bar Association when families are unable to pay for the service.

ping within 900 feet of the water.

"At 9:16 A.M. we broke out of the front and within minutes we could see our warships lined up in position. To the southwest were destroyers lying broadside to the shore. To the south other destroyers and little Higgins boats already had put off toward the shore. The warships were firing."

Lt. Leroy Puthoff of Middletown, O., was one of the "Bats of Hell" bomber pilots supporting the invasion who reached the target. The "Bat Out of Hell" previously had aided invasions on Lae and Sador, New Guinea, and Cape Gloucester.

Reinhold said the planes came in along the beach at "minimum level height," and Lt. James M. Mahaffey of Columbia, S. C., explained "minimum height means that when we see a tree we pull up."

"At this time," Reinhold said, "the Higgins boats, the first wave of them, were in about the center of the harbor and we went in for a second pass, shooting everything we had and dropping 500-pound bombs. If there were any Japs down there they were too busy to worry about the landing boats coming in."

"Then we went in for the third strike and the landing boats were only about 100 yards off the beach. We could see them and the men waved to us as we went past keeping our tuns hot for the entire length of the target. We also could see other boats putting out from the warships for the second wave."

"The Higgins boats had a tough job going through the narrow passage into the harbor and they were going single file when we saw them. We covered the target thoroughly and when we left the beach was pretty well covered with craters from bombs and shells from the naval bombardment."

night they had secured a 22-mile bridgehead, nine miles deep across the Narova River at the narrow land bridge of northern Estonia between Lake Peipus and the Gulf of Finland. A rail town nine miles west of ancient Narva was captured, virtually isolating the German garrison in that by-passed city of 25,000. The Russians were at least 15 miles inside Estonia astride the railway leading to Reval (Tallinn) the capital, 120 miles west of Narva.

Other Russians fought in the suburban streets of Pskov, capturing 70 nearby villages and cutting the railway south of Polotsk. Others captured Seluty, six miles south of the White Russian base of Vitebsk, and Skulovich, nine miles east. The Germans announced prematurely last week Vitebsk had been evacuated.

The swift Russian advances in the north accentuated the hopeless situation of isolated Finland. Despite hostile press comment, the fact the Helsinki government had published Russian peace terms was significant.

'YES, I DID IT THOMAS' SHERIFF QUOTES COLLETT IN AN ARGUMENT ON LAW

what kind of a gun it was Collett replied "a 32 Colt automatic," the sheriff said.

Sheriff Icenhower had been on the stand for nearly half an hour under rapid fire questioning by Linton before he seemed at ease and began to relate in detail the things that Collett had said and done while he was being questioned and held in custody in Toledo by the sheriff and Detectives Egger and Eckerman.

Previous to that time Attorney Linton had been bearing down heavily in his questioning of the sheriff to get him to relate all that he remembered happening and what was said to and by Collett during the time he was in custody. When the sheriff seemed hesitant and said he could not recall all these details, Linton sarcastically asked him, "Is that all you can remember during those many hours you had this man in your charge from the time you started with him to Toledo and during the eight or nine hours he was being questioned there?"

Icenhower protested that he could not remember everything that was said and done, because part of the time Collett was in a room being questioned by detectives while he (Icenhower) had left the building for an hour. Judge Rankin instructed the sheriff several times that he should tell what he remembered or say that he could not remember.

Linton directed many of his questions in an effort to show that Collett had not been given anything to eat during the greater part of the day while he was in Toledo and that he was not where he could use any toilet facilities. The sheriff stated, however, in his testimony that Collett had been allowed toilet facilities any time he asked for them, and had been taken a meal about 8 or 9 o'clock on the evening he confessed.

Lie Detector Tests

Collett was submitted to lie detector tests by Toledo detectives, Icenhower testified, and, with the instrument on his arm, the farmer was asked by Lt. George Eckerman, head of the Toledo crime laboratory:

"Do you know who killed McCoy?"

There was no answer, Icenhower said, and the question was repeated. This time, the sheriff added, Collett said "No."

"Eckerman said, 'Jim, you're lying to me,'" Icenhower said.

Then, the testimony continued, all officers left the little room, leaving Collett alone. They were able to see him, however, and hear anything the man might say. Then, the sheriff said, "Collett beat on the arm of his chair and said, 'They've got me. I'm gone.' Then he beat on the arm again and said, 'G—D—, Jim, you went too far.'"

Eckerman then returned to the room, Icenhower testified, and Collett "told them he was ready to confess."

Eckerman came out of the room, Icenhower continued, and said Collett wanted to talk to the sheriff.

"Jim told me he was going to confess," Icenhower said, "and I said, 'You'll probably sleep better tonight.' Collett replied, 'If I hadn't bothered me much, if I had a lapse of memory and killed the women, I'm sorry.'"

Icenhower related then to the court a summary of the statement. It was taken by a stenographer in the detective room, he said, but twice during the relating of it Collett stopped and the stenographer had to begin on a fresh sheet of paper.

James N. Linton of Columbus, Collett's chief defense counsel, asked Icenhower whether there was any discussion of a bribe in the statement saying, "It was made without any promises or threats against me."

"Didn't Jim say that isn't true? Wasn't he told that's in all of them?" Linton asked.

"No," Icenhower replied.

Icenhower disclosed for the first time details of the questioning of Collett in Washington C. H. before he was taken to Toledo. Immediately after his arrest, the sheriff said, Collett was taken to Icenhower's home for questioning about his movements the night of the triple slaying, with Prosecutor Hill present.

"Why did you question him?" Linton asked.

"Because we suspected him of the murders," Icenhower said.

"Did you let him know that?"

our ship was hit and so many of my shipmates were killed; when they took me to the hospital on that island. Just hundreds of other times.

"How will it end, Papa? For God's sake, tell me."

"Well, that's of my chest. I hope you understand that I love the United States as much, or more, than anyone. But what's the matter here—can't they see that it's their sons and friends they are hurting?"

"Your loving son, BOBBY."

"I don't know that we just exactly told him, but he must have suspected from our questions."

After morning recess, Icenhower told details he could remember about the trip back to Washington C. H. from Toledo, describing how he left Collett in the London jail. He said he told Collett "I'll leave you some place where you'll be safe."

Icenhower said he and Hill went to London about 8:30 A.M. the following day and "we took him out to his farm because he told us he would show us where the guns were."

Collett's son, Thomas, was at the farm, Icenhower testified. He said he took Collett to the tool shop on his farm and said Thomas had asked his father:

"Daddy, you didn't do this, did you?"

"Yes, Thomas, I killed Elmer, but I don't know about the women."

"Well, Daddy, what in the world did you want to kill anyone for?"

"I always wanted a good home for you and Louise," (Louise is Thomas' wife).

"That's a mighty poor way to go about it," Thomas said, Icenhower testified.

"Did they make you confess to something you didn't do," he asked his father, the sheriff declared and said Collett answered:

"No, they didn't threaten me—they treated me like a gentleman."

Then, Icenhower said, Collett asked his son to get him a spade. "I'm going to take these men back and get a couple of guns I hid in the woods," Icenhower quoted Collett as saying.

Icenhower described the trip to the woods to a log. "I believe this is the place," the sheriff said Collett remarked.

Icenhower said Collett cautioned him and Hill not to get too close. "This gun might go off. I tried to take all the loads out, but I might have forgotten one," the sheriff quoted Collett. Icenhower said Collett dug around two separate logs but didn't find the guns.

The sheriff hotly denied consulting a fortune teller to get a clue to the location of the guns when Defense Attorney Linton asked him if a seer had told him where to look.

"The fortune teller sent for me," he said. "That was about a week after we looked for the guns," Icenhower declared.

As Icenhower told of the trip to Justice George Worrell's court where a murder charge was filed against Collett, he quoted Collett as saying he would "like to talk to an attorney." "I said 'I think an attorney would advise you to plead not guilty and bind yourself over to the grand jury,'" Icenhower said.

Linton asked if Collett had been denied an attorney. "No, body told him he couldn't," Icenhower replied.

"An attorney would require proof—is that why you didn't call one?" Linton asked. Icenhower repeated his statement that he felt he knew what an attorney would advise.

Assistant Prosecutor Leis asked Icenhower if Collett offered to pay expenses for the trip to Toledo. "He was sitting in the front room (here Icenhower gestured toward the sheriff's residence) when we asked him if he would agree to a lie detector test. He stood up and said 'Sure. Let's go right now. I'll pay expenses,'" Icenhower said.

Before getting into the heart of questioning the next witness, George Eckerman, a detective at Toledo, Linton said, "It is my purpose to show the kind of treatment this man got—that these men dealt with him as an enemy."

Eckerman, called to the witness stand, described the procedure as Collett underwent the lie detector test.

"The first question," he testified, "was, 'Is your first name James?' and he said 'Yes.' The second question was, 'Do you smoke cigars?' and he said, 'Yes,' and there still was no reaction on the machine, indicating he was telling the truth."

"Do you know who shot the McCoys?" he was asked. There was a very definite response on this question."

Linton interrupted to ask Eckerman to state Collett's reply to the question whether he knew about the McCoy murders, and the Toledo official said Collett had replied he did not know who shot the family.

Eckerman testified he then told Collett "the indications of this (lie detector) graph are that you know something about the shooting of the McCoys."

"He looked up," Eckerman added, "and said, 'No, I don't.' This was about 3 o'clock (in the afternoon). From that time on I talked to him about the responses when he was asked that particular question. I told him when we knew those kinds of reactions we knew something was wrong and for the benefit of everybody concerned he ought to straighten this out and tell us what he knew."

Eckerman said the officers and Collett then resumed a discussion about a lapse of memory which Collett had insisted surrounded the evening of the slaying. In earlier talks, Eckerman added, Collett had said he consulted a physician several times because of memory lapses.

"After this conversation he hesitated, thought a while, then said, 'I don't know how to start. What can I say about those women?'"

"What happened?" Eckerman testified he asked Collett.

LEGAL PRECEDENT SET
A precedent in criminal trial procedure in Ohio, perhaps in the whole United States, probably is being established in the Collett murder trial here.

The admissibility of a confession purportedly made by the defendant, James W. Collett, on trial for the killing of the three members of the Elmer McCoy family, was up for decision Thursday morning in a court session which Judge Harry M. Rankin said might make legal history.

Presiding Judge Rankin decided to break previous legal precedent and rule on the confession at the outset of the trial after reading a court of appeals decision in the famous Snook case.

The real precedent, established late Wednesday afternoon, was a ruling by the court that there should be a hearing, with jurors excluded before the trial proper starts, to determine whether such an alleged confession shall be admitted as evidence.

This question was raised by James N. Linton, chief defense counsel, on the opening day of the trial when he objected to any mention of the defendant's alleged confession or of any statement said to have been made by the defendant until such were ruled by the court to be admissible. At that time Linton won a point when the court upheld his contention that the confession should not be mentioned in questioning prospective jurors.

On Wednesday afternoon after the jury had returned from a visit to the McCoy farm, scene of the crime, and the session of court was about to be resumed, Judge Rankin conferred with attorneys on both sides as to the question of mentioning the reported confession in any opening statement to the jurors. This was done after the jury had been excused until Thursday morning in order that the point at issue could meantime be decided.

After more than an hour of apparent spirited private conference, Judge Rankin emerged with the following rule and stipulation: "Counsel for the defendant have heretofore objected to any mention being made of the purported confession of the defendant, or other statements made by him between Tuesday, November 30, 1943, and Saturday, December 4, 1943, both dates inclusive, until after the court shall have on voir dire examination, out of the presence of the jury, determined the admissibility thereof, and this has reference to the opening statement of counsel for the state."

"It is stipulated and agreed that counsel for the state expects to make mention of the purported confession and other statements above referred to in the opening statement of the case, therefore, the court will now proceed, out of the presence of the jury, to take evidence to determine the admissibility of such objected-to evidence."

Both the state and the defense considered the battle over the confession a critical point in the trial and court officers said the side receiving a favorable decision would score a major victory in the case.

The confession, a center of controversy since the triple first degree murder trial opened last Monday, was announced by Prosecutor John B. Hill a week after the Thanksgiving Eve murders. He reported Collett admitted shooting to death his brother-in-law, Elmer McCoy, 59, but said Collett declared he knew nothing of the murders of McCoy's wife, Forrest, 64, and their daughter Mildred, 22.

It was indicated that the whole confession question would be thoroughly threshed out in the early Thursday morning session of court beginning at 9 o'clock. The jury was called to return at 10:30 A.M., but court officials said that it was quite possible the hearing on the admission of the confession might require the entire morning session or longer.

The defense was prepared to contend that any statements by Collett were made under duress, while the state has insisted since the confession was announced that Collett made it of his own free will.

Linton has subpoenaed four persons for questioning—Justice of the Peace G. H. Worrell, Sheriff W. H. Icenhower and two officers from the Toledo Crime Detection Bureau where the confession allegedly was made after lie detector tests—Lt. George Eckerman and Capt. Arthur Egger.

Collett pleaded innocent to triple murder charges before Worrell and Icenhower and Prosecutor Hill took the 60-year-old hog raiser to Toledo.

During informal discussions preceding the decision to determine the admissibility of the confession at once, Judge Rankin directed the attention of attorneys for both sides to a Franklin County court of appeals ruling in the case of Dr. William Snook, who died in the Ohio Penitentiary electric chair for the slaying of Theora Hix, an Ohio State University co-ed, June 13, 1929.

Attorneys for the Ohio State veterinary professor objected to admission of Snook's second confession into evidence. The state sought to do this during the questioning of a witness some time after opening statements had been made.

The defense said it wished to submit to the trial judge the question of whether the second confession could be admitted into evidence. The court agreed to hear arguments and testimony on whether the confession was obtained voluntarily or involuntarily. Voluntary statements may be admitted into evidence under the law, while those obtained under duress or threats may not.

After the court had agreed to hear the matter, defense counsel withdrew their request, declaring they were forced to submit the matter to the jury instead of the court because prosecutor Jack Chester had quoted from the confession in his opening statement and thus had impressed on the minds of the jurors the contents of the confession.

The defense said in effect that even if the court ruled the confession was invalid, this would not help their client since the damage was done when the prosecutor discussed the confession in his opening remarks.

The court of appeals held the defense claim was "not tenable, because counsel must have known when the prosecutor entered the field of the confession (during the opening statement) and had an opportunity then to insist that the admissibility of the confession be first determined before the jury be permitted to hear it. Failing to avail themselves of this opportunity at a seasonable time, they cannot now be heard to say that they were prejudiced thereby."

The Appellate Court held in substance that the defense was wrong in its claim that it had no recourse but to submit the matter to the jury instead of the real judge because if any prejudice was done it was done in the opening statement and the defense should have objected at that time.

It added that the defense could have objected when Chester first mentioned the confession, thus making it impossible for the prosecutor to discuss the confession further until and unless the judge ruled it could be admitted into evidence.

Since the defense failed to make any objection to Chester's remarks regarding the confession in the opening statements, the court held the defense had no right to claim it was forced to submit the matter to the jury.

Judge Rankin's decision to rule on the admissibility of the confession before opening statements are made would prevent any damage to Collett in case the confession should be found invalid, court officers said. They added that it still would permit the prosecution full use of the confession if it should be found admissible into evidence.

If the fight over the confession ends in time to permit making of opening statements and calling of witnesses Thursday the state expects to begin its side of the case by questioning neighbors who found the bodies and heard shots on the McCoy farm.

Hill has termed the shootings "murder for profit." The defense indicated in an alibi statement it intended to show that Collett was not in the vicinity at the time of the shootings. While the jury was being impaneled and when it visited the scene of the murders Wednesday, Collett retained the high spirits and keen interest in the case he has shown since a few hours after the trial began.

Collett Visits Triple Murder Farm With Jury

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Finnish press today was taking a hostile view of Moscow's armistice terms, and Finns in Stockholm expressed the opinion that their country wasn't likely to accept the Red proposals, mainly because she couldn't afford to withdraw her troops from their present positions as a preliminary to further talks.

However, Helsinki presumably is sparing for position. Finland's alternative to making peace now is to invite disaster by continuing as an ally of the Hitlerites. America, giving friendly advice, has warned the Finns that they must quit or their blood will be on their own heads.

It's an anxious moment not only for harassed little Finland but for all the United Nations, since her submission undoubtedly would set in motion great events favorable to the Allied cause. As the signs read, capitulation by the Finns might impel Bulgaria also to desert the Axis. Realizing all this, you get an added significance from Marshal Stalin's statement to President Roosevelt that he believes the final defeat of Hitler is near.

Stalin's red armies have set the Hitlerian battle line in Russia rocking until even its extreme flanks are being shaken. Those flanks are Finland in the north and Bulgaria in the south.

These small countries were seized upon as buttresses by Hitler when he attacked Russia. Indeed Bulgaria joined the Axis more than three months before the drab nach Osten began, and German troops entered the country the next day.

Bulgaria long has been flirting with the idea of deserting the Nazi master, but fear has kept her in line. Observers in Washington feel that Bulgaria probably will be governed by the results of the Soviet-Finnish negotiations. If the Finns get satisfactory terms, which are calculated to safeguard them from Hitler's wrath, then Bulgaria may follow suit.

One of the greatest difficulties both Finland and Bulgaria face in such a move lies in the fact that they are occupied by Nazi troops. The crash of German hoo-nailed military boots upon the pavement of Finnish- and Bulgarian cities has a most ominous sound. You can't blame Helsinki and Sofia for trying to safeguard themselves against Hitlerian retaliation.

There certainly is a strong possibility that both countries would become temporary battle grounds, until the Germans were cleared out by force, or were threatened with being cut off and annihilated. It would be too much to expect Hitler to abandon these positions voluntarily.

Getting Finland out of the war and clearing that country of Germans would have an immediate and far-reaching effect. For one thing it would help to make the Baltic States untenable for the Nazis and expedite the Red advance in this territory.

It would release the Red Navy into the Baltic Sea. It would relieve the German menace which long has hung over Russia's great Arctic port of Murmansk, and permit a free flow of supplies into the Soviet from the north. It would in due course release large numbers of Red troops from the Finnish war and permit of their use elsewhere.

Bulgaria's desertion of the Axis would be to the Balkans what a lighted match would be to a keg of gun-powder. The whole peninsula probably would blow up in Hitler's face, for Rumania and Hungary couldn't long stand the strain.

And finally, I believe the defection of both Finland and Bulgaria would force Hitler to pull his eastern battle-line back to a point close to his own borders. There he would begin his final defense of Festung Europa—his inner fortress. Meantime the Western Allies might already be peering against his western wall.

ACCUSED KILLER IS INDIFFERENT TO CRIME SCENE

Three Women and Nine Men Who Will Decide Fate View Surroundings

When the jury that is to decide the fate of James W. Collett was taken to the scene of the crime, Wednesday afternoon, Collett also was taken to the McCoy farm in custody of Sheriff W. H. Icenhower, and special deputies Chalmers Burns and William Curry.

Collett looked about indifferently and, closely escorted by the two deputies, at times stood among the jurors.

A biting breeze was blowing at the time, and as Court Bailiff Richard Ramsey led the jurors into the back porch and part of them had gone into the living room of the McCoy house, where the telephone wires had been cut by the killer, Collett stepped into the porch where he is alleged to have shot Mrs. McCoy to death and said to one of the deputies: "I want to get in out of the cold air."

At the time he was standing on almost the exact spot where the blood-covered, bullet-ridden body of Mrs. McCoy had been found the morning after the murder.

Bailiff Ramsey called the jury's attention to a bullet hole in the casing of the kitchen door, and to three bullet holes in the floor of the porch.

He also asked the jury to note the surroundings, the outbuildings, the farm houses to the east and west of the McCoy premises and the location of the barn with respect to the house.

The jury walked almost over the spot where the body of Mildred McCoy, with a bullet through her head, had fallen beside her car when the assassin fired into the back of her head.

Bailiff Ramsey halted them within a few yards of the scene and faced the jurors toward the spot, which was some 10 or 12 feet from the rear gate.

Collett stood on the outskirts of the jury, and looked casually about as if he might have been a disinterested spectator instead of the man who is on trial for his life for allegedly committing three murders on the scene Thanksgiving eve.

At the barn, where Elmer McCoy had been murdered, Sheriff Icenhower took a crowbar and pried away the boards that had been nailed across the door and that had barred the public from the barn.

The jury then crowded about the open door where Ramsey called attention to various objects. Every member of the jury inspected the interior of the barn, as they had the back porch and premises generally, with keen interest.

Collett stood near the south side of the barn and gazed about stoically. His "poker face" displayed no emotion and little interest in what was going on about him.

Judge H. M. Rankin and all members of counsel on both sides were with the jury, standing at one side most of the time.

A bevy of newspapermen and photographers were busy on the scene. The jury spent about 30 minutes viewing the premises.

A County Children's Home school bus, driven by Supt. David Whiteside, was used to transport the jury and enroute to the farm the jury was taken by way of the Lewis road. Returning, the route westward over the McCoy or Dill road, was followed to the Hays road, then to the Prairie road, thence back into the city.

Bailiff Ramsey was instructed

Scott's Scrap Book

to point out the several sharp turns in the road and also the Charles Griffith farm home where Dewey Clayton, farm hand who discovered the bodies of the McCoy family, had gone to telephone Sheriff Icenhower Thanksgiving morning after making his shocking discovery that the McCoy family had all been slain.

According to Special Deputy Wm. Curry, who accompanied Collett about the McCoy premises, Collett, upon entering the yard of the McCoy homestead said:

"This is a harvest for newspaper men. I suppose we will have our pictures taken three or four times again."

En route to the farm, Curry quoted Collett as saying: "I'll bet if anyone had known we were coming out there would have been 40 cars there."

In the barnyard Collett was standing beside an old Franklin automobile.

Curry said he asked Collett if that was "poor old Elmer's car," and quoted Collett as replying: "Yes," (and after thumping the side of the car with his knuckles) "he gave $3200 for it."

Jury Given Instructions

With the opening of the afternoon session when every spectator's seat was filled and others crowded all around the doors leading to the court room, state's attorney Leis made a motion that the jury be permitted to view the McCoy farm which was the scene of the crime. The defense attorneys offered no objection and Judge Rankin stated that the request would be granted. He then turned to the jury and issued the following instructions:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, a request has been made for a view of the place where it is claimed certain things that will be brought out here in evidence, occurred."

"It is important that you understand the purpose of the view. The purpose is that you may more fully understand the testimony and evidence as it will be introduced here on this trial, things you will see and observe personally and in evidence."

"It is important that you may more fully understand the evidence as it is brought out here, and especially the testimony of the witnesses, which they claim took place. 'Testimony' is what you get from the witness stand. Now, you are not, at this time, to have any discussion with any one about the evidence. If you want any information as to any fact that is material to this case, you may make your request to the bailiff in whose charge you will be in this view. Do not talk to counsel or to any of the parties while you are there. Hold yourselves as much in reserve there as if you were here, and have a view of the premises so that you will have a picture of the premises as you are sitting here and listening to the testimony and argument of counsel and things of that character as it will be brought out in this trial, that is relative to the evidence. If you want to have anything pointed out there, call the attention of the bailiff to that fact and he will speak to counsel and if the material is proper the object will be pointed out to you. In other words, it is to be a rather quiet affair so far as view."

JAP AIRCRAFT CARRIER IS TORPEDOED BY SUB; YANKS REPULSE ATTACK

that "the enemy force was entirely wiped out."

(Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique last night said the American position had been successfully consolidated, with a Japanese attack on Momote airfield on Los Negros Island "bloodily repulsed.")

The airfield, on Los Negros Island, is the larger of two in the Admiralties and the prize for which the Sixth Army forces battled when they swept ashore on the Bismarck Sea islands Tuesday morning.

In Allied hands, the Momote

airdrome would serve as a spring-board for new assaults against Rabaul and Kavieng, enemy strongholds in the Bismarck archipelago, as a base for air patrols to keep the Bismarck Sea clear of Japanese supply ships and as a possible jumping-off spot for air attacks on Truk in the Carolines.

In contrast with preliminary reports that the landing met no opposition, Associated Press war correspondent Olen Clements, with the assault forces, reported Japanese shore guns blasted heavily at units of the First (dis-mounted) Cavalry Division and caused at least one landing craft to turn back. Clements said there is a considerable enemy force on neighboring Manus Island, but there has been no report of battle action there.

"Our losses throughout these operations have been negligible," headquarters communicated.

Rabaul Bombed Again

The communique reported a 153-ton bombing raid on Rabaul Monday without meeting air opposition, and strikes against New Guinea coastal bases.

Other airmen, operating from Central Pacific bases, blasted the former U. S. possession Wake Island Monday for the 14th time since Pearl Harbor. Navy bombers probably destroyed six parked enemy planes.

Three enemy-held atolls in the eastern Marshalls were hit, and Nauru, west of the Marshalls, already hard hit by American planes and ships, has suffered additionally from attacks by a small fleet of Dutch submarines, heroic remnants of a naval force virtually wiped out during the Japanese drive through the Dutch East Indies in 1942.

Capt. L. G. L. van der Kun, former chief of staff of the Netherlands naval forces in the Pacific, revealed in Washington Dutch submarines sank 55,000 tons of enemy shipping in 20 months off the Dutch East Indies "despite the fact we could average only two submarines in operation at one time."

Japanese forces in Burma, who van der Kun said must be supplied 90 percent by water route from Tokyo, lost the town of Maw-kaw in the north to Chinese troops but offered stiffening resistance to other Allied forces driving down the Kaladan valley.

U. S. and RAF fliers ranged over most of Burma Monday and Tuesday, hitting communications, transport and troop concentrations.

NAZI FUGITIVE TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

Rev. W. O. Diekmann To Be at All Nations Church of Christ

A man who, Rev. L. A. Dahmer, the pastor of the church, said had had three conferences with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and later escaped a Nazi purge, is to speak at the All Nations Church of Christ at next Sunday's evening service.

Rev. Dahmer said, Rev. W. M. Diekmann of Yonkers, N. Y., had lost most of his possessions while lecturing in Germany on the Jewish question. Once, Rev. Dahmer said in describing the coming speaker's experiences, Rev. Diekmann had dared a challenger to shoot when he threatened him during a lecture. But, he added, "nothing happened."

Rev. Diekmann, he said, has traveled extensively in the United States as well as abroad. The public is welcome to attend the service Sunday night, the pastor declared.

Impending Devastation

When the day comes that Allied forces march through the rubble of what was Unter den Linden, the question in every mind will be: But where is Berlin? Goering insisted that no enemy bomb would fall on Germany, yet the extent of the devastation wrought solely from the air upon the capital is greater than that inflicted on any city in history.

The sack by land troops of populous centers of antiquity or since the Middle Ages has shown nothing comparable to what has happened to Berlin, if only for the reason that none of them was so large. 'Fifth largest city in the world, with a population of more than 4,300,000, slightly larger than that of Moscow, Berlin has suffered, according to what appear to be well authenticated reports from Switzerland, destruction so vast that the evacuation of one-half the population has been found necessary—Creating a larger force of refugees than any other city of the world has ever known.

It seems almost incredible that such damage can have been wrought from the skies in advance of the coming great land invasion. But what has happened to the capital is the sort of treatment to which all Germany's great industrial cities have been subjected.

In far-away Japan this report is one to cause consternation. Tokyo, its capital, the third largest city in the world—it is exceeded in population only by London and New York—cannot fail to realize that, since so much of the city is inflammable, an even worse fate awaits it. For Tokyo's 7,000,000, if the truth is permitted to reach them, fear must be their companion day and night.

Economy of Paper

The paper salvage quota for 1944 is going to be short by 2,000,000 tons at the present rate of collection, we are told by Gen. Brehon S. Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces. And that is more alarming than you might think.

"Our whole war economy is built on paper," says WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson. And he doesn't mean OPA forms or the inter-office memoranda of government agencies. He is talking about the vital war uses to which paper is put—dozens of them, from plasma containers to bomb fins.

Now, the collection of the 8,000,000 tons of paper needed this year is a tremendous task. But there is no reason why all of it has to be of the waste variety. Some of it could just as well be salvaged before it is used, with a consequent saving of money, labor, time and transportation.

The government has already started to do a job of eliminating its bureau's needless publications and releases. And it would seem that there are a few civilian items that we could bravely sacrifice, and still struggle through to victory. We might, for example, dispense with such things as—

Colored calendars, with a picture about five feet by three feet, and a calendar measuring five by three inches.

Flashes of Life

Maybe the Bus Had Rubber Walls
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—Bus Driver W. L. Boucher of Nashville testified at a regional War Labor Board panel hearing that he recently carried 134 passengers on a 36-passenger bus. He drove the load to the bus-shop to have a door control fixed and counted the passengers as they boarded another vehicle.

"The mechanics said that many people couldn't get on, but they did," said Boucher.

Really Leaf Tobacco
KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Tobacco sales supervisor Ed Johnston, Jr., of Rocky Mount, N. C., doesn't write letters home. He just scribbles, notes on burley sales tickets. The tobacco reaches his home office at Rocky Mount each day and his father, supervisor of purchases, reads the notes as he inspects each bundle of tobacco.

BATON ROUGE, La.—The colonel's eagles looked slightly tarnished to Pvt. Hugh Powell of Columbus, Miss., and he bet his buddy, Pvt. Frederick Gray of Charlotte, N. C., that he would polish them.

Saluting Powell stepped up to Col. E. Y. Argo, commandant of Louisiana State University, and with a "pardon me sir," flicked first one eagle and then the other with his handkerchief.

He collected the dollar.

Particular Mosquitoes
WASHINGTON—Sammy Gold, former Texas newspaper photographer now with the armed forces in India, writes this description of India mosquitoes: "The mosquitoes here are so big they fly down, turn our dog tags over to see what blood type we are."

Hints on Etiquette

Some people say what they think without thinking how it is going to affect the listener. They may be fine folk but for this fault. Don't allow yourself to get angry and break up a friendship with such a person. Overlook it.

Today's Horoscope

A birthday today means that you should practice sincerity, patience and diligence in your ambitions and everyday life. Be less skeptical. You have great self-control and psychic powers, and are an excellent conversationalist. You have many friends, prefer the company of the opposite sex, but are well liked by your own. Good fortune will cross your path this year, the more so if full advantage is taken of the golden opportunities presented. A legacy is not improbable. A child who is born on this date will revel in knowledge and learning of all kinds, with a great love of detail and precision. Financial security is foreseen.

Jap Soldiers Cooling Off

The sizable number of Japanese prisoners taken in the Marshalls indicates that the fanatical fight-till-death battle zeal of the little yellow men may be cooling off. There is also a report from China that Japanese prisoners admit many of their comrades in the occupying army are inflicting gunshot wounds upon themselves in order to be invalided home. The boys seem to be taking even such an old, staple national remedy as hara-kiri in much more temperate doses.

Doctor Explains Test for Aviators

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A QUERY comes as to what the Schneider test is. I take the answer from a recent book Fighting

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Fitness—A Preliminary Training Guide, by C. Ward Crampton, M. D. (Published in 1944 by Whittlesley House, New York).

An aviator must pass the Schneider test to enter service. A Schneider rating is frequently made on aviators and if one fails he is grounded.

Major Schneider, who designed the test, worked with aviators during the first World War at Mineola. He used the regular test of comparing pulse-rates and blood pressures in two positions, standing and lying down. But he felt that he could get more information as to their physical condition by increasing the tests to six. "The result of these gives the Schneider index. Three points credit is given for each one.

Pulse Ratings

Test I. Pulse rate lying down. Most great athletes have slow pulses. Cunningham's heart rate is 45 to 48. Long distance runners, fighters, bicycle racers—all who have to have endurance usually have slow pulses.

Lie down, relax, shut the eyes. The pulse is taken minute by minute until it appears to be as slow as it is going to get. This takes about 5 minutes. The credits are—50 to 70 =+3, 70 to 80 =+2, 80 to 90 =+1, 90 to 100 =0.

Test II. Increase of the pulse in standing. Rise and stand for two minutes to allow the pulse to assume a uniform rate. Count the pulse by quarter minutes. When two consecutive 15-second counts are the same multiply by 4. This gives the rate of the pulse for one minute. Compare with the pulse while lying down. The less the pulse increases on standing the better. Cunningham's pulse goes along like Old Man River—the same lying or standing. Credits—If the pulse increases only up to 10 beats =+3. If it increases above 15 to 20 beats =+1. (and if it has been fast while lying minus 1.)

Standing Pulse Rate

Test III. Standing pulse rate. If the pulse is slow standing more credit is given than if it is slow while lying down.

Test IV. Pulse rate after exercise. Provide a stool or chair

18½ inches high. Put the right foot on top of the chair. In 15 seconds bring the left foot up and stand on the chair, and bring it down again. Repeat every three seconds.

The pulse rate is counted at the end of this exercise. Credits—In general depending on what the pulse rate was before the test an increase of 10 beats only gives a 3+ credit. Increase of 20 beats or over usually means 2+ credit, but if the pulse rate is over 90 to begin with, the credit is 0 on an increase of 20 beats.

Test V. Return of the pulse to normal after exercise. Endurance athletes may slow the pulse rate down from 160 to 80 in one minute after a prolonged grind. The Schneider test gives 3+ credit if it returns to normal in 30 seconds, 2+ if it returns in 60 seconds, 1+ if it returns in 90 seconds.

Test VI. Blood pressure record lying and standing. If the pressure rises in the standing position the test is good. If it falls bad.

The Schneider test shows up excessive smoking, lack of sleep, worry—any factors that make for softness.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

SYNOPSIS

A mysterious assassin cut short the gay career of Syria Verne, artist model, just as she was answering the telephone in her penthouse apartment to which she had returned soon after midnight following a quarrel with Pierre Sturgis, art photographer. The police could find no gun, significant fingerprints, nor other evidence of an intruder. The evening of the murder, she had met an old friend, Argus Steele, author and former detective, in the Penguin Club where he was dining with Ellen Curtis, a model. Syria left, accompanied by Sturgis. Bill Carstairs, III, playboy, introduced his latest blonde, Dorry, to Ellen and Argus. Later, Ellen found Dorry in the ladies' room, weeping because her Bill "was phoning that awful Syria Verne again." Ellen noticed a snub-nosed revolver in Dorry's open purse. Next morning, Ellen phoned Argus to tell him that Syria had been murdered. Police Inspector Grange visited Steele as the investigation got under way. Later, Ellen introduced Argus to Roger Flagg in the latter's model agency. Flagg invited Argus to examine his office files, and Ellen showed Argus the routine and records of the model agency. They note Syria's chart; she had four appointments for that day, one of them with Pierre Sturgis. They agreed to meet later at the fashion show. After leaving Flagg's "beauty shop," Argus goes with Inspector Grange to the Pierre Sturgis studio where they meet the gorgeous and gossipy Cynthia Lane who says that Syria had quarreled with Flagg. Later she introduces them to Pierre Sturgis and William Carstairs, Sr. Pierre invites the detectives into his private office.

CHAPTER TWELVE

"Perhaps I'd better be going," Carstairs rumbled in a deep voice.

"You simply can't run away before we've had our talk," said Cynthia, taking hold of his sleeve.

"You've heard about Carstairs' Tomato Catsup, haven't you, Mr. Steele? Well, this is the man who makes it. She snuggled close to the Catsup king. "And I want to be the new girl on the bottle, now that Syria—" She broke off as she saw the look on Sturgis' face. Carstairs cleared his throat.

"We'll discuss it some other time," he said. "I really must be going. I'll call you later, Pierre, when you're free." He nodded curtly to Grange and Argus, turned on his heel and left the room. Argus watched Cynthia. But her face was expressionless. Only her dark eyes were sly as she watched Carstairs go.

"Is that Bill Carstairs' father?" Argus inquired.

"Yes," said Sturgis. "Now, if you'll follow me." He led the way to a small office and shut the door. When they were seated, Argus pulled out a pack of cigarettes and passed them around. Pierre took one. Grange pulled out his pipe.

"Mr. Sturgis," began Grange

mildly, "I know that you were with Miss Verne last night, that you had an argument with her in the Maison restaurant and that she walked out on you." He paused to light his pipe. "Supposing you tell me about it in your own words. Did she seem at all nervous or upset?"

"Nervous! That's putting it mildly, Inspector. I've never seen Syria so upset as she was last night. She didn't want to have dinner with the Carters, after they'd made special reservations and all that sort of thing. She snapped me up on everything I said. She had the car driver stop on the way to the Maison, to make a phone call. Then she got up from dinner twice to make other phone calls."

"Then what?" Argus asked.

"Well, she got into an argument with the waiter over the soup. It was cold viande, and it was delicious. She insisted she had ordered it hot. Then she made a remark which I thought insulting to Mrs. Carter and I reprimanded her pretty sharply for it. I reminded her that, after all, we were their guests. I've known the Carters for years, you see, and I had told them what a grand girl Syria was."

"She sort of let you down," Argus declared.

"Did Miss Verne tell you why she was so upset?" Grange asked.

"No," said Sturgis. "I couldn't quite figure it out." He pressed his left thumb and forefinger to his eyeballs and held them there a minute. When he looked up his expression was the embodiment of grief.

"I've just never had anything hit me like this," he apologized.

"What time was it when Miss Verne left the restaurant?" Grange queried. He licked the point of a short pencil and then wrote something in his little black notebook.

"I guess it must have been near 11:30. We had our showdown after her second phone call from the Maison. We exchanged some pretty hot words and—"

"And," Grange interrupted, "you told Miss Verne that if she left the party it would be either over your dead body or hers. Is that right?"

The photographer blanched. "If I did, Inspector," he answered, "I want you to believe that they were just so many words that slipped out in a moment of exasperation. I can see what you're leading up to, but I assure you that the last person in the world I would have harmed in any way was Syria Verne. I loved her." Sturgis felt in his pockets for another cigarette and lit it from the half-smoked butt in his hand.

"What time did you leave the Maison?" Grange asked, watching him intently.

"I suppose it must've been a few minutes later," Sturgis said. "I excused myself to the Carters and went for a walk. I wanted to cool off."

"Oh," observed Grange with renewed interest. "You wanted to cool off." He smiled, but not with his eyes. They were like two bits of flint. "And where did you go for this walk?"

"I don't know—I—" Suddenly

Sturgis snapped his fingers. "Yes I do, too. I walked up to 67th Street and Lexington Avenue and had a brandy in the corner saloon. I don't recall the name of the place but it's on the northeast corner of the street. It was just midnight, too. The bartender turned on the radio and a voice announced the time. You can check on that, Inspector."

"Will," said Grange, firmly.

"When you'd cooled off," went on Argus, "did you try to get in touch with Miss Verne by telephone?"

"No," replied Sturgis. "Why?"

"Because the phone was off the hook," said Argus. "I thought that if you had tried to call her and discovered that her line was constantly busy, you'd suspect that something was wrong."

"I wish to heaven I had!" exclaimed Sturgis. "But I guess it would have been too late. Inspector, you've got to find the person who did this."

"That's just what I intend to do," said Grange. "You knew Miss Verne very well. Would you have an idea as to who might want to kill her?"

"No," answered Sturgis.

"How about Flagg?" Argus asked. A muscle in Pierre's face tensed.

"No," he said abruptly.

"What do you have against him?" Argus pressed.

"Why, nothing."

"Come on, now. You said yourself you wanted the Inspector to solve this case," pursued Argus. "It's his job to find out everything that might have any possible connection with Miss Verne."

"Well," Sturgis hesitated, and looked uncomfortable. "It's just that Flagg tried to make trouble between Syria and me. I wanted to marry her and Flagg talked her out of it. Said she shouldn't marry any one until she'd got along further in her career. At times I've wondered if his motives were purely unselfish or whether there was another reason."

The telephone rang. Sturgis picked it up. He talked for a minute and then put down the receiver.

"I'm afraid you'll have to excuse me," he said. "I've got some work to do. If I think of anything that has a bearing on this—this tragedy, Inspector, I'll let you know."

Grange stood up. "Well, don't leave town, Mr. Sturgis."

"I won't," Sturgis promised. "Good-bye, Mr. Steele." He limped to the door and opened it.

"Now where, Inspector?" Argus asked.

"I thought you weren't working on any more cases," Argus raised an eyebrow. "After all," he said, "I did know the girl—"

"Well," put in Grange, smiling.

"I've got a phone call to make and then I thought I'd pay a call on an old friend of yours—Dancer Martinelli."

Argus bent his fingers and examined his nails.

"That," he said, "ought to be very interesting. I think I'll come along. Just for laughs."

Understand Your Federal Income Tax

No. 52 ADDITION TO THE TAX FOR DELAY IN FILING RETURNS

If an income tax return is not made and filed within the time prescribed by law, or prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in pursuance of law, a certain percent of the amount is required to be added to the tax.

For failure to file a timely income tax return, the amount to be added to the tax is 5 percent if the delay is not more than 30 days, with an additional 5 percent for each additional 30 days or fraction thereof during which failure to file a return continues, not to exceed a total of 25 percent. This addition will not be imposed, however, if the taxpayer can show, to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, that the delay was due to a reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.

A taxpayer who files a tardy return and wishes to avoid the addition to the tax for delinquency must make an affirmative showing of all facts relied on as a reasonable cause for failure to file the return on time, in the form of an affidavit which should be attached to the return. Alleged ignorance of the law is not a reasonable cause for delinquency.

If an extension of time for filing is desired, the request for the extension should be submitted to the collector in ample time so that if, for any reason, the extension is not granted, the return can still be filed on time.

Since employers are required to file with the Bureau of Internal Revenue a duplicate of the "Employee's Receipt" furnished each employee on Form W-2, showing how much income tax has been withheld during 1943, and since other persons making substantial payments to individuals for interest, rent, annuities, etc., on which income tax is not withheld, must file information returns on Form 1099, showing the amount of the payments made, taxpayers should make every effort to file their returns within the time prescribed by law and thus avoid the possibility of the additions to the tax being made for delay in filing.

These information returns are carefully checked with individual returns of taxpayers. Thousands of delinquent returns and additional revenue amounting to millions of dollars have been secured as the result of the examination of information returns.

March Church Day Is Observed Wednesday at Grace Methodist Church

March Church Day was observed by the Woman's Society of Christian Service at Grace Methodist Church on Wednesday with Mrs. Rose Hughey presiding. The morning session was opened by Mrs. Annette Rowe giving devotions on the theme for the day, "New Voices."

Miss Cordelia McCafferty and Mrs. Mabel French then rendered a duet entitled, "Praise the Lord," which was enjoyed by the members. They were accompanied by Mrs. Frank Blessing at the piano.

After the business meeting a covered dish luncheon was served in the church dining room with Mrs. Tom Bush's circle number two as hostesses for the day. Mrs. Frank Blessing presided as program chairman during the afternoon portion of the all-day meeting. It was opened by Miss Ann Patton giving a vocal solo entitled, "Ninety and Nine," accompanied by Mrs. Harold Craig.

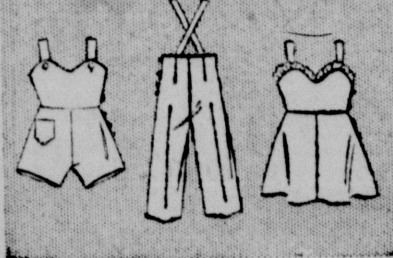

The topic "New Voices" was injected into the program which was divided into three parts. Mrs. Sexton gave a most interesting paper on "Women at Work," and this article stated clearly that women were causing factories to be very conscious of them, and likewise women were becoming more conscious of factories. Factories are making improvements and adding conveniences for women who heretofore have never been considered. Woman, in industry, are being considered to a great extent in plans for the post war world.

Mrs. Helen Dunton's portion of the program dealt with "Women at Work in Detroit." Much of this information was taken from an article by Miss Lena York, who is a member of the Wesleyan Service Guild Council. Living conditions in crowded cities such as Detroit make the responsibilities of the church very great and in most instances problems relating to social and religious life are solved by the church. The subject of Mrs. Wallace Perrill's paper was "The Domestic Worker." This paper gave interesting facts concerning these people and showed that even their lives are being changed by the present times.

Mrs. George Mirabent's topic was "Women in the Church," during which she urged that all women take their place in the activities of the church as well as in the home and industry, also that they be conscious of new people in the community and see that they are taken in and be made to feel they are a part of the community and church.

Miss Ellen Montgomery gave a lesson in "Etiquette in Church Attendance" which contained quite a few "do's" and "don'ts" for young and old. She also made a point of the fact that "religion is the keystone of the American life."

Mr. Donald Riber concluded the program with the reading of "A Handful of Clay," by Henry Van Dyke.

Woman's Guild Meets Wednesday At Mrs. Woollard's

The Woman's Guild meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred D. Woollard on Rawling Street and for the occasion she had placed attractive vase arrangements of jonquils and pussy willows throughout her attractive home, adding a gracious note to a most enjoyable afternoon.

The hour preceding the business meeting was taken up in the usual sewing on comfort blocks, and an hour of visiting was also enjoyed over their needlework by the members.

The president, Mrs. Herbert Clickner, opened the meeting with a poem, "Thought on Service," after which Mrs. Oscar Beatty gave the devotions. She gave a scripture reading and then read an exposition on the same chapter by the great Scotch theologian, Dr. Henry Drummond. She closed with a prayer and the group then repeated, "The Lord's Prayer."

The regular business meeting followed during which it was decided to have a covered dish luncheon at the church basement at ten-thirty o'clock on Wednesday, March 8, and at this time comfort knotting will occupy the time.

Miss Ann Patton favored the group with a vocal solo entitled "The Ninety and Nine," which was greatly enjoyed by her enthusiastic audience. She was accompanied by Mrs. Harold Craig.

Mrs. O. D. Farquhar then treated the group when she gave a reading of an Irish story, impersonating the lovable character Mrs. Alderman Casey in her own delightful and imitable way.

The hostess and her committee served coffee, tea and cake at the close of the afternoon's pleasures.

The committee was composed of Mrs. A. C. Gossard, Mrs. John Sheppard, Mrs. Robert Turney, Mrs. R. A. Bryson, Mrs. T. J. Grove, Mrs. M. L. Clark, Mrs. Leota McLean, Mrs. Hoy Simons, Mrs. Imogene Nation, Mrs. C. E. Davis, Mrs. Lucy Butcher, Mrs. Lizzie Buck, Mrs. Edgar Coil, Mrs. Homer Miller, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. Clark Pensyl, Mrs. C. S. Kelley, Mrs. W. E. Klever, Mrs. Lydia Williams, Mrs. Harold Callender, Mrs. C. V. Sexton and Mrs. Anna B. Shoop.

King's Daughters Class Meets with Miss Verna Williams for Session

The King's Daughters Class of the Church of Christ held their regular meeting with Miss Verna Williams as hostess, this week and devotions were given by Mrs. Tillie Van Gundy.

During the course of the business meeting it was voted to send an Easter gift to the Cleveland Christian Orphanage.

YANKS IN ENGLAND READY BUT A LITTLE SCARED

TROOPS ALL SET TO HIT EUROPE AND CONFIDENT

Boys Are Cocky But Jokes To Keep Up Spirits Are Tinged With Grimness

By JAMES E. KING
LONDON, Mar. 2.—The American doughboy, waiting for the kickoff in the invasion of Europe is like a football player in a dressing room before the big game—cool, a little tense maybe, but confident.

Like the football player, he doesn't like to talk much about the business at hand. Wives, sweethearts, the home town—sure—but not what it's going to be like storming ashore.

They expect to be scared at first, especially those who haven't been shot at before, but they'll tell you: "We've got a job to do and we'll do it when the time comes."

Laughs Are Grim
They joke a little, like Pvt. Wayne Mantle, Harrisville, N. Y., who allowed he was "ready to invade New York right now."

But there's no joking in training against invasion day.

They are cocky, but they have no illusions about the grim game of war. They know a lot of them aren't coming back. But they know that it's the only way to win the war and get back home.

Sgt. Sammie Slusher, Willard, Ohio, tells his men how that first baptism of fire is going to feel.

"Frankly," he says, "you will be scared stiff. Your frame will tremble and your knees will knock. The sweat of your hands will be cold and clammy."

"Your lips and throat will be dry, your stomach upset, and you'll wish you were a couple of thousand miles away somewhere in America. It will be like waiting for the kickoff."

"Chances are you'll be surprised how cool you are once you get in there. You'll find you have a lot more know-how than you thought you did."

Work and Play Hard
These American soldiers don't rate anybody in particular, but they train hard, and on leave they play just like anyone else away from home would do.

Some are a little more anxious for the invasion to start than others, maybe because they have a touch of homesickness.

"In a way, I'm a little tired of waiting," said Sgt. Clarence Kamin, 24, Chicago, and Sgt. Paul Setkula, former Stump Creek, Pa., coal miner, finished the sentence for him. "The sooner we get started, the sooner we get home," he said.

Pvt. Kenneth O. Marshall, Shreveport, La., said "I think it will be rough" and Pvt. Clarence Huggman, Blacksburg, Va., added: "We'll do it."

Family Reunion
"You never can tell what you'll meet on an invasion," grinned Cpl. Harry Hammer, Brooklyn. "When we 'invaded' Northern Ireland I met my brother Ben, whom I hadn't seen for a long time, and my brother Murray (former New York policeman)." Between wishing they were going home and knowing the only way to get there is by way of Berlin, they can laugh at such things as happened to Pvt. George Morgan, a mural painter from Staten Island, N. Y.

PAPER PICK-UP SCHEDULED FOR NEXT SATURDAY

Collection To Begin at 8 A. M. If Weather Fair, Craig Asserts

Unless it rains next Saturday, Boy Scouts will be around to collect waste-paper, Maynard Craig, salvage chairman, said today. The collection will begin at 8 A. M.

As in previous collections—the last one netted 15 tons, Craig said—paper should be tied in bundles and put at the curb before houses. Paper cartons should be flattened to make collection easier, he reminded.

The dominant note in the waste paper collection of 8,000,000 tons expected nationally this year is the need for essential military and civilian needs. What with so much paper going overseas—as ration containers, parachutes, shell casings and to protect other vital war material—never to be returned, more than half of all the salvagable paper in the country must be collected and sent to the mills.

Donald Nelson, War Production Board chief, said, "there are many people who say—'just tell us what we can do to help this war effort.'" One of the very important things they can do is the collection of paper in order that we can carry on a war economy, because that is what paper means to us. We live on paper. It is almost as important to us today as air and water. It is not waste paper. It is the raw material for very important containers of all kinds and building materials."

COLUMBUS, March 2.—(P)—The district court of appeals yesterday ordered the release of Richard Knight of Hardin County, who has served almost 10 years of a life sentence which the court held had been imposed illegally.

Bean of Hardin County during a robbery. The appellate court granted Knight a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds that Ohio law recognizes no such plea.

LIONS CANTEEN BENEFIT SHOW TO BE APRIL 17

Club Given Citation for Selling $200,000 War
Bonds in Drive

The "Lions Canteen Revue" will be presented April 17 in the high school auditorium, it was announced today.

Rehearsals for the benefit show to keep the canteen service at the bus station, sponsored by the Lions Club, here running have already begun. W. L. O'Brien and Robert Terhune, co-chairmen of the show, report rehearsals of the choruses are progressing "very nicely."

Every Lion will have a part in the show, if only in choruses, it is said. The present plans include a minstrel show as the Lions Club part of the show, with other acts culled from Washington C. H. talent scattered through the performance.

Ray G. Nauss, WCH Lion in service now stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky., wrote Clifford Hughes he had received a package of the cookies given to service men at the canteen here. A soldier, stationed at Camp Campbell, stopped here on his way back to camp, received the cookies and brought them along with him to give to Nauss.

For selling nearly $200,000 worth of War Bonds during the Fourth War Loan drive, the Lions Club today has a U. S. Treasury Department citation. The navy team, headed by Eugene Smith, sold over $100,000 worth and the Army team, generated by Charles Reinke, sold over $96,000 worth of bonds. Reinke and Smith were given individual certificates.

The certificate will be framed and hung by the Lions Honor Roll in the Country Club. F. E. Hill, chairman of the War Finance Committee, presented the citation.

Bliss Robison, recently inducted member, attended his last Lions Club meeting Tuesday night. He leaves for Naval service next Tuesday. Howard Thompson is also scheduled to enter service soon. Paul Van Voorhis and R. B. Tharp were named to buy gifts for the two men.

A committee appointed by President Harold McCord to arrange for a ladies night program March 28 is headed by Ellet Kaufman with Ed Suntheimer, Ray Seblom, Robert Hook and Alfred Weatherly as his co-workers.

Lady Nearly Choked While Lying in Bed— Due to Stomach Gas

One lady said a few days ago that she used to be afraid to go to bed at night. She was swollen with stomach gas, which always got worse when she went to bed, and the gas would rise up in her throat after she lay down and would nearly choke her. She couldn't lie flat. Had to prop herself up on pillows. Recently this lady got ERB-HELP and now says gas is gone, stomach feels fine, bowels are regular and she can go to bed and sleep soundly.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Finley's Drug Store.

OF HUMAN INTEREST At The War Front

By FRED HAMPSON

ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC AIR BASE, Solomons Island, March 2—(AP)—You may have heard the conjecture, "I wonder if our air men really shoot down as many enemy planes as we claim?"

I asked our fighter pilots who have been devastating Rabaul for more than two months what they think about this, and got a variety of answers.

Some say we shoot down more than we claim. Others say we are too optimistic. Others say the figures are about right.

Capt. Harold L. Spears of Ironton, O., a Marine corsair pilot credited with destroying 15 enemy planes, says, "Our scores are pretty accurate."

"Sometimes there is some duplication, but not much," he reported. "We don't claim a kill unless we see the plane blow apart, flame or crash and as a rule a flier can be pretty certain whether he got a kill."

Mrs. Lucy Wipert called on Mrs. Ida Zimmerman, Saturday afternoon.

Hawley Russell of North Scituate, Mass., who has shot down at least five Japanese planes, said he thinks our figures are too big.

"The mistakes are honest mistakes," he said, "but the exaggeration comes about by more than one pilot claiming the same kill. Also you've got to remember that in an air fight we are always traveling at about 400 miles an hour and turning and twisting and half the time we are partly blacked out.

"We shoot down a hell of a lot of Japs, all right, but I sometimes doubt if we get as many as we claim. But we shoot down a damned sight more of them than they do of us and it's not only because of our better planes and ordnance—it's because of our better personnel."

OHIO PARACHUTER KILLED

MARFA, Tex., March 2—(AP)—Second Lt. Thomas E. Russell, 25, was killed in a parachute jump from a Marfa army air field training plane which crashed. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Russell of Cincinnati.

PUERTO RICO IS DESCRIBED TO SPANISH CLUB

B. M. Frank Weade Tells WHS Students of His Experiences

The WHS Spanish Club today has a clear picture of what life on Puerto Rico is like after Boatwain's Mate 2-C Frank Weade, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Weade, told the club members of the customs, activities, food and education of Puerto Ricans.

B. M. Weade has been stationed on the West Indian Island since October, 1943, and learned the every day life of the inhabitants.

When asked if he had picked up any Spanish, he replied "When you're out on the coast alone with a native one of you has to give." Then he added that Spanish is heard on every side from morning till night and naturally he had learned many expressions.

He also remarked the only foods that are eaten are rice, beans and fruit. "I believe I have almost gone tropical too," he said, as he told of his lack of appetite for other foods.

Another feature of the program was an observance of Henry W. Longfellow's birthday. Longfellow spent a number of years in Spain translating Spanish poetry. Nancy Lee James presented a short biography of Longfellow and accompanied the group as they sang the English and Spanish words of "Stars of the Summer Night." Some Spanish verses of "Coplas de Manrique" were read by Dick Hagerty, followed by Longfellow's English translation read by Bobby Lou Speaks.

The business session, conducted in Spanish by Miss Speaks, featured scripture and prayer by Karl Harper.

A chili luncheon was served by Harriett Braun, Edna Lininger, Mary Lou Hollis and Beverly Long. Ed DeHeart, a former member, was a guest for the meeting and luncheon. Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood is the sponsor of the club.

MIDDLETOWN, March 2—(P)—Termination of War Department contracts for the manufacture of primary training planes found the Aeronca Aircraft Corp., engaged in a vast retooling program necessary to start the first American production of big, fast utility-cargo planes heretofore made only in Canada.

Production of trainers was terminated Monday by a War Department order.

The new ship is expected off Aeronca's assembly line early this spring. Under the arrangement, Aeronca will be the first and only manufacturer.

LIBERTY SHIP TO BE NAMED FOR CLAPPER

WASHINGTON, March 2—(P)—The name of the late Raymond Clapper, newspaper columnist, will be given to a Liberty ship constructed by the shipyard having the lowest accident rate during a month-long safety contest beginning today among nine yards scattered from Maine to California. Clapper was killed in a plane accident while observing the invasion of the Marshall Islands.

CHANGES MADE IN PERSONNEL AT RATION BOARD

New Chairman of Price Panel and Chief Clerk
Are Installed

Miss Jean West has been promoted from panel and administrative clerk to the chief clerk of the county's War Price and Ration Board, filling the vacancy caused when Thomas Brown advanced to the regional administrative office of the OPA in Columbus, but the board chairman said that so far as the public was concerned there would be no change in regular routine or service when he made the announcement, Miss Emma Lou Straley, who has been in the office for some time and is familiar with rationing purposes and the board's policies, has been moved up to fill Miss West's place.

It was said that changes in personnel could be made now without upsetting the routine because the country's rationing machinery had been put in running order during the past two years of experience and was now functioning smoothly.

Some changes also have been made in the price panel of the board. Carey McConaughy, manager of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. plant here, is now the chairman of the panel and Clarence Cooper, manager of the Producers Cooperative Association, is a new member. Also on the panel are Ralph V. Taylor, proprietor of the Home Appliance Co., Fred Enslin, proprietor of Enslin's Dot Food Store, and Gene Smith, auditor of the Wilson Hardware Store. Charles Orr resigned from the panel.

Although it has little direct contact with the public, the price panel is considered one of the keystones of the price control system and one of the main bulwarks against inflation.

Word has gone out from OPA headquarters in Washington that tire and tube rationing quotas for March show a slight increase over totals allowed to be distributed in February, but it was said at the office of the Ration Board here that no instructions had been received here yet. No other comment was made. It has not been the OPA policy to give allotment figures for individual board areas.

The report from Washington said:

"The new passenger tire quota for the U. S. was fixed at 691,025 tires, and increase of 45,975 over the February allotment.

"The March allotment will be distributed by local War Price and Rationing Boards on the new 'occupational basis' which supplants the previous mileage basis for determining eligibility for tires. The most essential occupations will be granted preference in the issuance of tire certificates, regardless of monthly mileage."

NAZI GENERALS ARE EXECUTED, REPORT

STOCKHOLM, March 2—(P)—The foreign affairs columnist of Aftonbladet said today three German generals had been executed after a courtmartial because they ordered a retreat recently in the Pskov section of Russia without orders from Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, were said to have made a special trip to Pskov in connection with the situation.

(Similar reports were heard last week in other capitals.)

Virtual Civil War Rages In France Under Nazis

(Editor's note—Taylor Henry, writer of the following dispatch, was chief of the Associated Bureau in Vichy at the time of the German occupation. He is now in Portugal awaiting repatriation after more than a year in German internment camps at Lourdes, France, and Baden-Baden, Germany.)

By TAYLOR HENRY

LISBON, Mar. 2—(P)—Virtual civil war in France between partisans of the United Nations and German supporters has resulted in the death of thousands of collaborationist Frenchmen and members of the German Army of Occupation with only nominal casualties to the "Friends of America," as many of the partisans call themselves.

During the last six months, according to best available figures, this French terror has spelled death to at least 1,500 French police and militia, and half as many civilian collaborationists, and to between 1,500 and 2,000 German troops.

Widespread as these figures indicate the terrorist activity to be, it is nothing as compared with sabotage, one of the French patriots' main contributions to the United Nations war effort.

Latest round-number figures on sabotage indicate partisans have made 15,000 bomb attacks, 1,000 direct attacks against railroads carrying supplies and men for Germany, and some 750 attacks in various city halls to obtain food tickets and supplies for the growing terrorist organization.

Most of these have been individual attacks, and do not include the increasing warfare between organized terrorist troops and Joseph Darnand's French Gestapo, which has been responsible for execution of several hundred persons in the last few months.

One of the sore spots for French patriots with whom I talked on my way through France was the fact that while the Germans were executing French men and women who were fighting their country's battles against the occupation troops, Marshal Henri Petain in an official Vichy ceremony laid wreaths on the graves of German dead at the same he honored French soldiers killed in the fighting around Vichy in the last days of the war.

New courts martial installed in France under the Darnand police regime to carry out immediate executions have been only partly successful. In case after case well-organized partisans aided by friends in the official police released prisoners before the firing squad could carry out the sentence.

GREEK GUERRILLAS KNOCK GERMAN TRAIN OFF TRACK

CAIRO, March 2—(P)—Greek Guerrillas led by a British officer derailed a German troop train Feb. 22 near Mt. Olympus killing 400 Germans, a Nazi general and his staff, it was learned reliably today. Many others were injured.

Blue Lions Polish Attack For Tournament Markets and Finance

The WHS Blue Lions cagers have been polishing up their offense this week in preparation for their first game in the central district tournament against Linden High School's basketballers Friday night at Delaware.

Coach George Miraben has been emphasizing scoring plays and their theme song might well be: "Drive For That Basket."

The Lions' defense has shown such improvement that the coach feels he is now justified in repeating over and over again to his boys that they can't win game without registering points and that they can't register points without shooting for the basket. However, he has stressed that wild shot can be costly—that is the reason he is "trying to get these boys to drive constantly for that basket."

The spirit of the squad is high, but the coach believes not too high for, he explains, "they realize that anything can happen in a tournament." He has pointed out to them that every team plays a different type of game from that

Intramural Cage League All Set for Sixth Round

The Bloody Bucketeteers were still perched atop the WHS Intramural League heap and the eight teams headed down the home stretch for the finish.

With a record of five wins and no defeats, the Bucketeteers were all set for the Powderpuffs, the only team in the loop that has not yet won a game, on the high school floor Thursday evening in the sixth round of the schedule. Their game is last on the slate for the four-game evening's program.

—Spying— On Sports By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Don't hold your breath waiting for this latest Dodge "deal" to go through. The word is that the prospective purchasers won't make up their minds whether they're interested or not until they see all the figures—and it was those telephone numbers with a dollar sign in front that scared Max Meyer out. . . Do you suppose the reason you hear so much about buying ball clubs these days is that there's more chance of getting a club than of the clubs buying a good player?

Today's Guest Star Don Donaghy, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "The Atlantic Pines Race Track promoters have made a keen choice of site for their venture. They stand a chance of excavating enough priceless old golf balls to pay for the plant."

War Boomer May Invest In Dodgers

By LEROY ATKINSON
BOSTON, March 2.—(AP)—A radio-tinker man, who ran a two-by-four repair shop into a million dollar war industry now operating in the shadow of Boston's Fenway Park—home of the Boston Red Sox—may purchase the controlling interest in the fabulous Brooklyn Dodgers.

He is 225-pound, five-foot, eight-inch Theodore Roosevelt McElroy, who, according to reports out of New York, is heading a group of baseball fans and businessmen in negotiations aiming toward purchase of the "Bums."

McElroy could not be reached immediately for comment but associates said he is "considering the deal."

By Any Other Name Ed Staples, Branch Rickey's handy man, was lunching in a Brooklyn restaurant the other day and discussing at considerable length on the Cardinals. . . As he rose to leave, the waiter asked: "Excuse me, suh, do you come from St. Louis?" . . . Staples admitted the charge. . . The waiter grinned: "Is your name by any chance Dean—Dizzy Dean?"

ELIZABETH, N. J. — Buddy Farrell, 159½, Newark, N. J., outpointed Freddie Wilson, 159½, New York (6); Johnny Price, 140, Montreal, outpointed Eddie Cooper, 135, New York (6).

OAKLAND, Calif.—John Thomas, 136, Los Angeles, outpointed Jimmy McAllister, 131, Baltimore (10); Willie Chestnut, 137, New York, Lincoln Stanley, 146, Oakland, draw (8).

ROOM AND BOARD

used during the regular season and that "tournaments have a tendency to equalize and level-off all teams."

Linden-McKinley team has a record similar to that of the Lions. The big threat is a boy by the name of Perry Reall, who was the leading scorer of all Columbus high schools with an average, it is said, of 11 points per game with a 50-0 team.

Linden-McKinley will be sending its first team to a tournament, this is its first year of interscholastic competition.

Coach Miraben and his boys agree the distance from home they will have to go to get to the tournament is "definitely against us" and point out that not only will the trip be wearing physically, but also that "most of the schools are closer and will send large followings to support their teams." And, they added, that "having someone from the home town yelling encouragement and the more who can go from here the better we'll like it."

The squad making the trip will include Bill Ruddick, Bud Carlsson, Roger Whitmore, Del Brannen, Jim Twining, Carroll Steele, Wayne Ruddick, Dan O'Brien, Jim Liso and Don Graves. Bill Parker, who has been out of school the past two weeks, will be among the missing. Bob Kelly will go as the manager.

Because of wartime travel restrictions, the two coaches, Miraben and Jerry Kissell, will take the boys in their cars.

If they win their opener against Linden-McKinley, the Lions will face their next tournament opponent—probably Newark, last year's state champions and picked to repeat this year—Saturday night. However, the boys will come home Friday night after the game and go back, if necessary, Saturday.

The coaches are not overly optimistic but they agreed that "if the boys play the brand of ball they did in the last three games, we have a better-than-average chance of sticking in the tournament."

ARCARO COURTING LADY LUCK AS HE SEEKS HIALEAH PARK HONORS ON FOUR FREEDOMS

By BERT COLLIER
MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—If little Eddie Arcaro boots home the winner in the $25,000 Widener Saturday to round out a Hialeah Park grand slam, he probably will be the only one to insist it is merely a matter of luck.

"I'll have to get the breaks," declared the jockey who was under the wire first last Saturday with the outsider, Stir Up, in the $15,000 Flamingo, Florida's three-year-old feature which shares with the Widener top billing of a Hialeah Park meeting.

Arcaro's triumph was a continuation of victories in 1942 when he brought in Requested in the Flamingo and followed with a win on The Rhymers in the Widener. The Park's handicap headliner. Neither winner was a public choice. The events were not run last season when a ban on pleasure driving kept the park closed.

Arcaro says his mount in the big race Saturday, Greentree Stable's Four Freedoms, is "not a class thoroughbred," but he has done all right with the big brown son of Peace Chance, which he booted to a victory in the Palm Beach handicap this year and to a close second in the $7,500 McLennan two weeks ago. The jockey thinks his prospects are fairly good to make it four top Hialeah stake races in a row.

Calumet Farm's Sun Again, which out ran Four Freedoms in the McLennan, rates the favorite. Arcaro's spot and will have the advantage of a ride by Ted Atkinson, leading jockey of the Florida season.

GREMLINS HOLD LEAD

The Gremlins lengthened their lead in the API Women's League in Wednesday night's bowling on the Main Street alleys when they took all three games from the Spitfires.

The Aeronauts, pressing toward the front but still quite a way back, made a clean sweep of their match with the B-19s.

The Lowly Gliders, getting tough in their cellar, spoiled any hopes the P-38s might have had for winning all their games, by knocking off the first one by a substantial margin before they went into a tailspin and dropped the last two—the middle one in a roll-off.

Big Ten Race Near Decision

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP)—The Big Ten basketball race will be settled Friday and Saturday and northwestern's Wildcats will do most of the "settling."

If the Cats, weakened by the loss of Otto Graham and more recently by the departure of Nick Vondick, Jerry Carle and John Ward, can win just one of their two-game set with Iowa at Iowa City, Ohio State will have its first undisputed Conference crown since Jimmy Hull led the Buckeyes to national honors in 1939.

The Hawkeyes (8-2) must win both to tie Ohio (10-2) for the crown, but the Wildcats loom as potential spoilers. Knocked from a possible tie themselves by Illinois last Friday, the Northwestern five came back to smash Purdue (8-3) 51 to 45 Saturday, and remove Boilemaker hopes for a slice of the championship cake.

Should McElroy gain control of the Dodgers, the Ebbs Field gang will have a head-man after their own hearts. A man whose war plant operates under a vast sign proclaiming:

"The world's best telegraph apparatus manufactured by the world's champion radio telegrapher."

Back in 1922 he set a record of 56½ words per minute for three minutes without an error and only a few days ago he received the Marconi Memorial Award of achievement at the Annual Veteran Wireless Operators' Dinner in New York.

Ex-Champion In War Work

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP)—Eleven years ago Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin, as Irish as the Harp of Tara's Halls, knocked out Young Corbett III of Fresno, California, and won the welterweight championship of the world.

Today Jimmy is still swinging punches, but they are aimed at the Axis. Independently wealthy, the genial and smiling veteran of the prize ring, who once dug claims for a living and later retired from boxing in 1936 with a goodly share of the $200,000 he earned, is one of the men behind the gun.

McLarnin works for an airplane specialties concern in Hollywood. He puts in a full day but whatever spare time he finds usually is devoted to his new love, golf. He's a four handicap man.

Bob Montgomery Goes Overweight

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Bob Montgomery was two pounds over the 135-pound lightweight limit when he finished heavy training for his title bout with Champion Beau Jack Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

Jack stepped four rounds in the gymnasium and tipped the beam at 134½. The champ is a 5 to 1 favorite.

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP)—All grains continued their slow climb today under the leadership of rye, which advanced as much as a cent at times. Dealings continued light and most of the activity was provided by local traders, although there was a little mill buying in wheat shortly after the opening.

Buying of rye appeared based on hopes the War Food Administration would succeed in its efforts to have some of this grain used in industrial alcohol production. There were reports of some wheat flour sales to the far west. Oats lagged at the start but came ahead with other grains toward the close. Corn bookings expanded from the comparatively low level of preceding days this week.

Closing prices were at the day's highs. Wheat finished ½¢ higher, May $1.71½, oats were up ¼¢, May 79½¢, rye was ahead ¼¢-½¢, May $1.28 ½¢-1.29, and deferred deliveries of barley were ¼¢-½¢ higher, July $1.19½.

PLATTER POINTED FOR DERBY

By FRANK ECK
NEW YORK — Remember to use two T's when you mention Platter's name because big things are expected of the colt, regarded as one of the finest horses ever owned by George D. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman.

The son of Pilate-Let's Dance by Jack High gave assurances last fall that he's a real stretch runner when he copped both the Pimlico Futurity and the Walden Stakes.

And what's more, Platter, now being readied to make his 1944 debut in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Jamaica in April, may have a running mate in Lucky Draw when the bugle sounds for the 70th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs on May 6. Lucky Draw won three New York stake races as a two-year-old last spring.

"Platter should be greatly improved this year," says Conn McCreary, the husky 112 23-year-old who hopes to pilot the Widener hope. "He was slow coming around last season, but when he did find himself he trounced 'em all."

He did beat some good ones but not all of them. After trailing such crack juveniles as Occupancy, Pukka Gin, Pensive and Weyanoke in his first starts, Platter waited until last November to graduate when he trounced By Jimmy. In his next start, the Walden, he turned back Royal Prince and Director J. E.

Platter, 8 to 1 in the Derby future book, at present is listed as the second choice with Pukka Gin, Lt. Col. C. V. Whitney's star, as the favorite at 6 to 1.

Platter won $50,150 last season while finishing in the money five times in his seven starts and he really didn't have one bad race against his record.

REVIEWING OF DEFERMENTS TO START AT ONCE

'Particular Attention' To Those Under 26 Asked by President

The draft board here will "start immediately" on President Roosevelt's weekend order to review all deferments. Coming from Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service head, the directive calls for "re-examination of all registrants classified 2-A, 2-B, 2-C and 3-C, with particular attention to those under 26 years of age." Roosevelt statement said that agriculture and industry should release the younger men for military service.

The memorandum from the President at selective service headquarters here now reads:

"The crucial campaigns of this year will determine both the length of this war and its price in men and goods. We are well equipped in food and munitions but their production has drawn over heavily on our stock of manpower. It is time to strike a new balance.

"The armed forces have continuously adjusted their requirements to the minimum necessary to implement strategic plans. Initial estimates have been reduced by over half a million men. Recently the Army has had to withdraw the great majority of men who were receiving instruction in colleges. The present allocations of personnel to the armed forces cannot be further reduced and there is a very real danger in our failure to supply trained replacements at the time and in the numbers required.

"Selective Service has not delivered the quantity of men who were expected. The shortage which commenced to develop last September reached a total of 200,000 on December 31. This means that today we are still short approximately 200,000 trained men, although the actual personnel shortage in the army has been reduced to 150,000.

"Today as a result we are forced to emasculate college courses and trained divisions and other units. The Army will not reach its planned January strength until sometime in April or even later if Selective Service continues to fall behind on its quotas. The nation's manpower pool has been dangerously depleted by liberal deferments and I am convinced that in this respect we have been overly lenient particularly with regard to the younger men.

"The over-age men, the physically disqualified, the returned soldier, and the women of the nation must be used more effectively to replace the able-bodied men in critical industry and agriculture. Almost five million men have been deferred for occupational reasons. Deferments for industry include over a million non-fathers of whom 380,000 are under 26 years of age. Of almost a million non-fathers deferred in agriculture, over 550,000 are under 26.

"Agriculture and industry should release the younger men who are physically qualified for military service. The present situation is so grave that I feel that the time has come to review all occupational deferments with a view to speedily making available the personnel required by the armed forces."

FUGITIVE CONVICT IS ARRESTED HERE

To Be Returned To the London Prison Farm

Charles Woolum, whom Chief Jess Ellis said had escaped from the London Prison Farm, was picked up by the police, Wednesday night, at Stone's grill, and is being held for officers from the penitentiary.

Woolum was serving a one to 20 year sentence for auto theft, according to Chief Ellis.

Officers from the institution were expected to come after him sometime Thursday.

Danville News

Killed in action—how these three words strike terror to our hearts. We are unlike the war lords of our enemy nations, for they do not seem to care for human life. But every true American is grieved over every boy killed in the service. If the news comes our loved ones are missing in action, there is still hope. We can pray and trust, for the news that they are safe. But when these terrible words come, killed in action, all hope is gone, and the nation mourns, with the brave mothers who stood so courageously by while their sons left for combat duty.

While there is not much we can say to those who have lost a loved one in the service, we can say it grieves our hearts also. We cannot express our feelings on this subject, for our sympathy goes too deep for words. We are praying earnestly for all the boys in the service that they will return safely and soon to those they love.

ANOTHER AUTO STOLEN IN CITY

Seventh Car Stolen and Later Returned

Police are still looking for one or more persons wanted for a series of automobile thefts in this city during recent weeks, and someone is facing serious consequences as result of their crimes.

Wednesday night a car owned by Richard Croker, East Paint Street, was stolen around 8 P. M., from its parking place at the curb and about 11 P. M. was found abandoned within a square or two of where it had been stolen. Seven to eight gallons of gas had been used by the thieves during their joy ride.

It was the seventh automobile stolen recently, and later found abandoned near the place where it was stolen.

Most of the autos have been stolen from the northeastern part of the city within a few squares of the high school building.

MRS. FRANCES BUTCHER GIVEN FINAL TRIBUTES

Funeral services for Mrs. Frances M. Butcher were held at the late residence in Bloomington at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon under the direction of Rev. Arthur George, pastor of the Gregg Street Christian Church.

The pastor read scripture, offered prayer and delivered the sermon.

Mrs. Arthur George sang three hymns "Saved By Grace," "Sometime—You'll Understand," and "Does Jesus Care?"

The funeral was largely attended by friends and relatives and the many floral tributes were cared for by Mrs. Marjorie Whitmar and Miss Leona Butcher.

Burial was made in the family lot in the Hidy cemetery.

Pallbearers were Leo, Merrill, Loren and Norval Butcher, Jr.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

FAYETTE COUNTY BOYS IN SERVICE

Aviation Cadet Winfield L. McKinney has returned to Maxwell Field, Ala., after being here with his parents and wife on leave.

Mrs. Dwight Coffman has received word that her husband, Pfc. Dwight Coffman, has arrived safely somewhere in England. In a recent letter to her he stated: "The next time the Red Cross comes around give them a couple of dollars for me. They're doing a swell job over here"

POET'S CORNER

"THE FATAL BOND DRIVE"
Hark, and I'll tell you a story.
A famous story of Old Glory.
All the many years she's spent,
Waving in a land's defense,
Stars endorsed with compliments,
Of bonds bought long ago.

High she waved o'er grounds of victory,
Ne'er a thought was contradictory,
Of her station as the best,
Knowing she would stand the test,
Let the people tell the rest,
And bonds bought long ago.

Hear, and I'll tell you a blessing,
While your dollars you're caressing,
You may increase them 10 percent,
Money now is only lent,
Peace must come, don't say it can't,
From bonds bought in '44.

Fix your eyes upon tomorrow,
Then there'll be no more such sorrow,
Pray for boys gone far-away,
BUY BONDS NOW, buy today,
There'll be a fatal drive they say,
From BONDS bought in '44.
—Wilma Radcliffe.

FEBRUARY RAIN ABOVE NORMAL IN COMMUNITY

Precipitation Reaches Over Four Inches During The Month

February precipitation over this area reached a total of over four inches, according to the monthly summary compiled by U. S. Weather Observer, Chalmers Burns.

His report showed 3.18 inches of rainfall with 4.50 inches of snow, or somewhat over four inches of water during the month, compared with a normal of 2.74 inches in February.

On February 22 the rainfall was .95 inch and on the following day it reached .83 of an inch, the two rains being the heaviest in recent months.

Several fogs and some windy days were recorded during February.

The mean temperature for the month was 35.5 or somewhat higher than the normal of 32 degrees.

The mean maximum was 46 degrees and mean minimum 25.4 degrees. The above normal temperature was due to a series of exceptionally warm days for February.

March certainly did not "come in like a Lion," for there was no storm, although the temperature was well down in the 20's
